Disclaimer

Exemption of liability, the European Computer Telecoms Group

Disclaimer

Although due care and attention has been given to this translation, it should not be considered a legal document. The original language document shall take precedence over this translation in any dispute over interpretation.

1. Content of online offering

The European Computer Telecoms Group accepts no liability for the actuality, accuracy, completeness, or quality of the information provided. Liability claims against the European Computer Telecoms Group pertaining to material or ideal damages caused by use or non-use of the provided information or use of incorrect or incomplete information are principally exempt, unless the European Computer Telecoms Group's intentional and gravely reckless negligence can be proven.

All content is subject to confirmation and is not binding. The European Computer Telecoms Group explicitly claims the right to change, supplement, delete parts of the pages or entire pages without prior notice, or to suspend the publication temporarily or completely.

2. References and links

In case of direct or indirect references to other Web sites ("Hyperlinks"), which are outside of the European Computer Telecoms Group's sphere of responsibility, a liability obligation only comes into effect if the European Computer Telecoms Group knew of that content and if the ECT Group been technically capable and if it had been reasonable to prevent the use of illegal content.

Hereby, the European Computer Telecoms Group explicitly declares that, at the time of link creation, no illegal content was visible on the pages to be linked. The European Computer Telecoms Group has no influence over the current or future design, content, and the copyright of the linked/associated pages. Therefore, the European Computer Telecoms Group distances itself explicitly from all content on linked/associated pages which were changed after link creation. This statement pertains to all links and references established within its own Internet offering. The provider of the site that was linked to is solely liable for illegal, incorrect or incomplete content and particularly for damages resulting from use or non-use of information provided in that manner. The party which merely refers to that publication via links is not responsible and liable.

3. Copyright and trademark law

In all of its publications, the European Computer Telecoms Group strives to respect the copyright laws of the graphics, audio documents, video sequences, and texts involved. It also strives to use self-created graphics, audio documents, video sequences, and texts, or to use graphics, audio documents, video sequences, and texts that are license-free.

All brand and trademarks named within the Internet offering and possibly protected through third parties are the unrestricted subject of regulations mandated by the trademark law and the ownership rights of the registered owner. The mere mention should not lead to the conclusion that trademarks are not protected through third-party rights.

4. Data protection

If there's a possibility within the Internet offering to enter personal or business data (e-mail addresses, names, addresses), then the user explicitly reveals this data voluntarily. Use and payment for the provided services - if technically possible and reasonable - is permitted even without the provision of such data/along with provision of data made anonymous, or a pseudonym. Third parties are not permitted to use the contact data in the context of the imprint or comparable information - such as postal addresses, phone and fax numbers, and e-mail addresses - for purposes of distributing information not explicitly requested. Legal action taken against the sender of so-called Spam mails is explicitly reserved in case of violation of this prohibition.

5. Legal effect of this exemption of liability

The exemption of liability is to be seen as part of the Internet offering which referred to this site. If partial wordings or individual wordings in this text no longer are in line (or only partly in line or not fully in line) with the current legal position, the remaining parts of the documents remain unaffected by that in terms of their content and validity.

On the topic of data protection

Protection of personal data is important to us. That's why we conduct our activities in accordance with the applicable laws guarding personal data and ensuring data security. In the following, you will read what information we may collect, how we will handle it, and who - in some cases - may receive this information.

Personal data

Via our Web sites, we gather no personal data whatsoever (e.g., names, addresses, phone numbers or e-mail addresses), unless you voluntarily provided us with such data (e.g., through registration, surveys) or unless you agreed to provide the data, or unless the corresponding laws protecting your data allow this.

Purpose

Generally, we use the personal data that you provided in order to answer your inquiries, in order to process your orders, or to provide you with access to certain information or offerings. Of course, we respect if you do not wish to provide us with your personal data for the purpose of supporting our customer relations (especially direct marketing or market research). We will not sell your personal data to third parties, nor will we market it in any other manner.

Use for a certain purpose

The personal data provided online will only be recorded, processed and used for the purposes that you chose. Exceptions are if the recording, processing and use

- ▶ are conducted for another purpose which is directly connected to the original purpose for which the personal data were recorded.
- ▶ are required for the preparation, negotiation and compliance of a contract with you.

- ▶ are required due to legal obligation or regulatory or judicial orders. are required for explanation or for protecting legal claims or for defending against suits.
- ▶ aid the prevention of abuse or other illegal activity, e.g., intentional attack on our system ensuring data security.

Communications and use-related information

If you are accessing our Web sites via telecommunications services, then communications-related information (e.g., IP address) or use-related information (e.g., data on start of use and duration, or on telecommunications services you use) are generated automatically with technical means. They will possibly allow conclusions on personal data. If recording, processing and using your communications- and use-related information is imminently necessary, then this is subject to the laws on data protection.

Automatically recorded, non-personal data

When you are accessing our Web sites, then on occasion information will be recorded automatically (that is, not via our registration) that is not assigned to a specific person (e.g., Internet browser used and operating system; domain name of previously visited Web site; number of visits; average time of visit; pages accessed). We use this information to determine the attractiveness of our Web sites and to improve their performance and content.

"Cookies" - information that is automatically stored on your computer

If you visit one of our Web sites, it is possible that we store information on your computer in form of a "cookie", which will automatically recognize your computer during the next visit. For example, cookies allow us to adjust the site to your interests or to save your password, meaning you do not have to enter it again each time you visit. If you don't want us to recognize your computer, please adjust your Internet browser so that it deletes all cookies from your PC hard drive, blocks all cookies, or warns you before a cookie is stored.

Google Analytics

"This website uses Google Analytics, a web analytics service provided by Google, Inc. ("Google"). Google Analytics uses "cookies", which are text files placed on your computer, to help the website analyze how users use the site. The information generated by the cookie about your use of the website (including your IP address) will be transmitted to and stored by Google on servers in the United States. Google will use this information for the purpose of evaluating your use of the website, compiling reports on website activity for website operators and providing other services relating to website activity and internet usage. Google may also transfer this information to third parties where required to do so by law, or where such third parties process the information on Google's behalf. Google will not associate your IP address with any other data held by Google. You may refuse the use of cookies by selecting the appropriate settings on your browser, however please note that if you do this you may not be able to use the full functionality of this website. By using this website, you consent to the processing of data about you by Google in the manner and for the purposes set out above."
